

SOCIAL & BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES MAJOR

REQUIREMENTS FOR THE SOCIAL & BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES MAJOR

- A minimum of 40 semester credits in coursework from either two or three of the following academic departments: Sociology/Anthropology, Psychology, History, Economics, or Political Science, plus selected courses from the Linfield Department of Business. Although the Division of Continuing Education offers few Political Science courses, appropriate transfer work will count toward major requirements. No more than 20 semester credits may be used from any one department toward the major, though there is no cap on the number of credits in a department that may count toward graduation.
- At least 21 credits in Linfield coursework in the major and 15 upper division credits in the major.
- Fulfill requirements for either Bachelor of Science or Bachelor of Arts.
- ENG 377 Fundamentals of Research Writing prior to the research methods class.
- A Linfield course in research methods, usually taken in the fall of the student's senior year. At the end of this class the student will submit a proposal for a research project in a field in which the student has taken at least 12 semester credits of coursework. Methods classes are offered in History, Psychology, and Sociology/Anthropology.
- A research project completed during the spring of the student's senior year after departmental approval of the proposal.
