What’s Language in Motion (LiM)?

Great way to connect McMinnville to the World!

Language in Motion (LiM) is an innovative and cooperative outreach program in which study-abroad returnees, international students, and advanced language students create language and cultural activities for presentation in local K-12 classes. Linfield students visit local schools and share their experience abroad by giving a presentation and activities.

Language in Motion at Northwest

Language in Motion: Linfield is part of Language in Motion in the Northwest consortium, led by Willamette University. Participating schools also include Lewis and Clark College and Pacific University.

Program Goals

* To increase interest in language and cultures
* To demonstrate the value of language learning, study abroad, and college
* To establish connections between local students and teachers.

The Power of Learning a Foreign Language

With the generous support from the Arthur Vining Davis Foundations, Language in Motion: Linfield was established in 2013.

The LiM Mission

Language in Motion expands, enriches, and energizes K-16 language and culture teaching and learning through educational outreach and professional development opportunities.

The LiM Vision

By bringing together campus and school partners and by sharing resources across K-16, Language in Motion excites students to learn more about the world and its peoples, improves and enriches language and culture teaching and learning, hones intercultural skills, demonstrates the value of higher education and of studying language and culture, and supports networks of educators.

Q&A

How much does it cost to invite LiM to my school and/or community?

No cost. Linfield staff will arrange everything, including transportation and other necessary expenses.

Can I request specific topic / language / culture for presentations for my students?

Absolutely. Please let Linfield LiM Coordinator know of your specific needs, and we will try our best to accommodate your requests.

How long is the presentation? How can I fit it to my schedule?

Linfield LiM Coordinator will coordinate the logistics of the presentations. Please let us know of your preferred time slots.

Is LiM available for foreign language courses only?

No. We can arrange presentations of any topic as long as it relates to study abroad experience.

Sounds Great! How do I get started?

Please contact one of the LiM faculty advisors for details.
